

Sisters and Brothers,

Christmas is a special time of year when we get together with family and friends, bake our special cakes and cookies, decorate our homes with beautiful lights and decorations. It is also a time when we remember those who are in need and especially our service men and women who are in foreign lands keeping our homes and families safe and free. I have a special poem I wish to share with you.

‘Twas the night before Christmas, he lived all alone, in a one bedroom house made of plaster and stone.
 I had come down the chimney with presents to give, and to see just who in this home did live.
 I looked all about, a strange sight I did see, no tinsel, no presents, not even a tree.
 No stocking by mantle, just boots filled with sand. On the wall hung pictures of far distant lands.
 With medals and badges awards of all kinds, a sober thought came through my mind.
 For this house was different, it was dark and dreary, I found the home of a soldier, once I could see clearly.
 The soldier lay sleeping silent, alone, curled up on the floor in this one bedroom home.
 The face was so gentle, the room in such disorder, not how I pictured a United States soldier.
 Was this the hero of whom I’d just read? Curled up on a poncho, the floor for a bed?
 I realized the families that I saw this night, owed their lives to these soldiers who were willing to fight.
 Soon round the world, the children would play, and grownups would celebrate a bright Christmas day.
 They all enjoyed freedom each month of the year, because of the soldiers, like the one lying here.
 I couldn’t help wonder how many lay alone, on a cold Christmas Eve in a land far from home.
 The very thought brought a tear to my eye, I dropped to my knees and started to cry.
 The soldier awakened and I heard a rough voice, “Santa don’t cry this life is my choice;
 I fight for freedom, I don’t ask for more, my life is my God, my country, my corps.”
 The soldier rolled over and drifted to sleep, I couldn’t control it, I continued to weep.
 I kept watch for hours, so silent and still and we both shivered from the cold night’s chill.
 I didn’t want to leave on that cold, dark night, this guardian of honor so willing to fight.
 The soldier rolled over, whispered, “Carry on Santa, it’s Christmas day, all is secure.”
 One look at my watch, and I knew he was right. “Merry Christmas my friend and to all a good night.”

Let us remember all the men and women who are serving this country to keep us safe and free. Thanks to all those who participated in sending the Christmas Cards to our service men and women.

My wish for each of you is a very Merry Christmas and a very peaceful and prosperous year.
